PHOTOGRAPHY BY MICHAEL SPEWAK (LUXE HOME)

Open since 2010, Jonathan Adler's Old City boutique has revitalized the neighborhood's reputation for contemporary home furnishings.

Jonathan ADLER DESIGNER AND AUTHOR

The purveyor of all things “happy chic,” Jonathan Adler’s distinctive style was honed growing up in South Jersey, where he famously got his start making pottery in the basement of his parents’ home. A few decades later, Adler’s penchant for crafts has grown into a lifestyle brand that includes furnishings, lighting, home accessories, and even handbags. In addition to overseeing 25 stores worldwide, an e-commerce business, and a wholesale business with over 1,000 locations, Adler will be toasting to a new partnership with Moët & Chandon this summer: He has designed a serving tray to complement the Champagne’s nautical-themed, limited-edition American Summer bottle.

Favorite Philly music act: No playlist is complete without a little Patti LaBelle.

Favorite Philadelphia movie: The Philadelphia Story. Cary Grant, Katharine Hepburn, and James Stewart—need I say more? Secret city find: The Franklin Fountain has the best ice cream I’ve ever had. Famous Philadelphian I’d most like to have dinner with: Grace Kelly, an American royal. Philadelphia space I would most like to make over: The Divine Lorraine could use a little style, craft, and joy. What inspires me about Philly: Philly is where I fell in love with design, and my beloved Eagles. Five years from now Philly will: Have even more fab restaurants, even cooler shops, and even nicer people. We should all invest in real estate now.
